Chinese knots are a kind of handiwork created by using various methods such as tying, knotting, crossing, weaving, coiling, twining, and drawing a rope.
Long Description	Students will learn and practice the unique art of Chinese calligraphy. The course commences with the exploration of the pictographic origin of Chinese characters. Participants start their journey by overcoming the daunting task of writing with a horse-hair brush. The course not only teaches writing techniques but also Chinese culture and history: the Chinese philosophy behind brush-holding, the motion of strokes, and also the Yin/Yang relationship between "fast and slow", "black and white", "dry and wet" and so on.	In our painting course, students will learn about both ancient and modern Chinese painting techniques and styles. Classes teach the spiritual and historical aspects of Chinese painting. Students will use a variety of techniques to draw on rice paper with writing brushes, soft pens, and even their own fingers. Topical content taught includes Flower and Bird Painting, Landscape Painting and Figure Painting. Techniques imparted include Fine Brush Painting, Free Sketch, Heavy Color Painting, Ink and Wash Painting, Line-drawing, Mural Painting, and so on.	Chinese Paper Cutting, or Jianzhi, is the first type of paper cutting design, since paper was invented by Cai Lun in the Eastern Han Dynasty in China. The art form later spread to other parts of the world with different regions adopting their own cultural styles. Because the cut outs are also used to decorate doors and windows, they are sometimes referred to "chuang hua", meaning Window Flower. In this course, students will learn various styles and strategies of paper cutting. They will create cuttings of their own design and will be able to take their work home with them after they complete the course.	Tai chi chuan (literally "Supreme Ultimate Fist"), often shortened to t'ai chi or tai chi in English usage, is a type of internal Chinese martial art practiced for both its defense training and its health benefits. It is also typically practiced for a variety of other personal reasons: its hard and soft martial art technique, demonstration competitions, and longevity. As a result, a multitude of training forms exist, both traditional and modern, which correspond to those aims. Some of tai chi chuan's training forms are especially known for being practiced at what most people categorize as slow movement.	iMandarin is pleased to offer its students the opportunity to learn and experience the Chinese art of knotting. Chinese knots are a kind of handiwork created by using various methods such as tying, knotting, crossing, weaving, coiling, twining, and drawing a rope. The craft represents the long history of the Chinese nation and educates students about the local traditions of decoration and its associated aesthetic ideals. Activities
